

Alice Kuo, M.D., Ph.D.

Dr. Alice Kuo is an Associate Professor of Pediatrics, Internal Medicine and Psychiatry at the David Geffen School of Medicine at UCLA, and of Health Policy and Management in the UCLA Fielding School of Public Health. She is Chief of Medicine-Pediatrics and Director of the Medicine-Pediatrics Comprehensive Care Center at UCLA.

Dr. Kuo has been committed to improving developmental services for children and adults with disabilities. She is the Director of the national Health Care Transitions Research Network for Autism Spectrum Disorders, funded by the Maternal and Child Health Bureau. She is also the Director of Research Education and Training for the NIH-funded Center for Autism Research and Treatment at UCLA.

Dr. Kuo served on the Executive Committee of the American Academy of Pediatrics Council on Community Pediatrics for the past six years and was the Policy Chair from 2012-2015. She has published over 35 peer-reviewed articles in the areas of early childhood health, developmental services, health disparities, and medical education. Her book Child Health: a Population Perspective, was released by Oxford University Press in November 2015. She received a B.A. in biology from Harvard University and her M.D. and Ph.D. in educational psychology from UCLA. She completed her combined internal medicine and pediatrics residency training at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center and a NRSA Primary Care Health Services Research fellowship at UCLA.